

2024 MEN'S RETREAT

JESUS:

Relevant Yesterday,
Today, Forever?

SEPTEMBER 27-28

Men are living in a season of uncertainty and polarization with no easy solutions, a moment with a lot of conflicting “facts” in a rapidly changing landscape. Places that once offered respite from the world like our homes and faith communities are also filled with tension. As we live our lives it is hard not to just perpetually scroll through social media and become cynical about everything. This September, lay aside your cynicism for a weekend and let us ponder the question: What relevance does a first century, crucified, Jewish Rabbi named Jesus have for my life today? John 1:43-51, Jesus calling Nathaniel and Philip, will be our starting point as we dive into what Jacob Smith calls the “Nazareth Principle.” Through this principle we will explore the distinction between skepticism and cynicism, why am I so cynical and how is Jesus the answer, and how can I share my faith in such a way that offers a real answer to skepticism, while not perpetuating the cynicism in others.
